

Is bronze an alloy, what is it made up of?

A. An alloy of copper and tin

- B. An alloy of copper and Lead
- C. An alloy of aluminium and tin
- D. An alloy of copper and sulphur

Is Bronze an alloy?

Yes, bronze is an alloy made up of copper and tin.

Bronze is an alloy consisting primarily of copper, commonly with about 12-12.5% tin and often with the addition of other metals (such as aluminium, manganese, nickel or zinc) and sometimes non-metals or metalloids such as arsenic, phosphorus or silicon.

WikiPedia

Furthermore, Please Consider linking to these MCQs:

Which of the following is/are Synonyms for disaster?

Which is the biggest animal name in Al-Quran?

The most disliked thing by ALLAH though Halal is?

General Science And Ability CSS Paper 2017 MCOs

How many different Roblox games played in 2018?

Fast means to Stop and when it was made obligatory?

CSS Current Affairs MCQs 2013 QUIZ | SOLVED MCQs of CURRENT AFFAIRS PAST

Currency of Srilanka is?

National Flower OF USA is ?

GAAP stands for?

871