

When was the Universal Declaration of Human Rights adopted?

When was the Universal Declaration of Human Rights adopted?

- a) November 10, 1948
- b) December 10, 1948
- c) January 10, 1949
- d) February 10, 1949

The United Nations General Assembly adopted the Universal Declaration of Human Rights on December 10, 1948. This was a historic step towards recognition of human rights beyond limits of race, religion and gender. Universal Declaration of Human Rights (UDHR) is the first positive step towards even greater landmarks in human history. Its first article clearly states that all human beings are born free and equal in dignity and rights.